FAQs

The Certified Hazardous Materials Manager (CHMM®) credential

recognizes individuals with professional qualifications, expertise, and work experience to manage and consult on environmental, health and safety (EH&S) concerns.

Federal and state governments and many private businesses recognize the value of the CHMM credential and some require it in the performance of specific EH&S activities. Examples are: U.S. EPA; Army Corps of Engineers; National Park Service; U.S. Air Force; Dept of Veterans Affairs, FDIC; New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection; States of Connecticut; Indiana; Kentucky; and New York; CB&I, General Motors; ENSR, 3E, Tetra Tech, Terracon, Boeing, Sarah Lee, URS, and others.

The CHMM credential is accredited by the American National Standards Institute (ANSI), which meets ANSI/ISO/IEC 17024. The CHMM credential is also accredited by the Council of Engineering and Scientific Specialty Boards (CESB), which meets ASTM Standard E 1929-98 for Personnel Certification Programs.

EHMM Course

Annually in May, the RMC holds a 3-day Essentials of Hazardous Materials Management course, an excellent refresher for the experienced EH&S professional and a thorough review course for anyone taking the CHMM certification exam. (24 CMPs)
